

“Warm Love” Pumpkin Mask Flying Off Amazon Shelves; Perfect Skin Care Item for Fall

SPRINGFIELD, MO, Sept 15, 2016 -- Albertini International's Pumpkin Mask “Warm Love” is flying off Amazon shelves this week. “We spent Friday and most of the weekend in the warehouse sending out tubes to restock Amazon's supply. They are quickly running out of inventory,” noted Albertini Founder and CEO Valerie Albertini.

Warm Love quickly became a fall favorite, and has been feature in the Ipsy glam bag and Beauty Beat Box NY.

Warm Love is a fragrant exfoliating facial masque created from natural ingredients including pumpkin, papaya and pineapple enzymes. These fruit enzymes gobble up dead skin cells thus purifying skin and stimulating new cell growth, resulting in a smoother and brighter complexion. This soothing mask gently warms as it is applied, which makes it very popular among women looking for a unique skin care item. Warm Love comes in a 5 ounce tube and retails for $23.00

International lecturer Valerie Albertini has been involved in many aspects of the beauty business for the past thirty years. Recruited by Jheri Redding (founder of Redken, Jhirmack, and Nexxus), she served as Jhirmack's Manager of Skin Care and Cosmetics. Albertini also worked with Sebastian as Director of New Product Development, as well as for Tressa and Murad. Valerie has spent the last few years researching and developing unique formulas for her new products

Divine Skin Hydrator, an all-over body moisturizer applied when wet was previously launched and continues to be Albertini International's principal product and number one seller. It is a very popular product in dry climates and for dry fall and winter skin. Divine Skin Hydrator is a unique formulation that locks water in cells, helping to restore skin's Natural Moisture Factor, providing a real 24 hour solution to dry skin problems. Divine is applied in-shower and can be used every day, resulting in significant improvement in dry, hormonally impacted skin.
