

□ ALBERTINI INTERNATIONAL WARM LOVE PUMPKIN EXFOLIATING MASK + PURE LOVE CLEANSING OIL + DIVINE SKIN HYDRATOR

JANUARY 13, 2016

*product were sent to me for my consideration, my review is genuine and my own opinion***

I'm super excited to be typing up today's review because I have been wanting to test and review a few products from Albertini International for awhile now. The line up is Warm Love Pumpkin Exfoliating Mask, Pure Love Olive Cleansing Face Oil and Divine Skin Hydrator. To say that the pumpkin exfoliating mask is life changing is no exaggeration! Last year I received a tiny little tube of warm love and it was even more phenomenal than the Kate Somerville Exfolikate mask -- which is an absurd $80 for a smaller tube than this, even though it works. What happened is that I forgot the brand name so I had to search through many pumpkin masks to finally discover if it indeed was Warm love so that I might review the product for you. Indeed it was warm love! I'm also happy to report that the skincare line is cruelty-free, made using natural ingredients and specifically created for women in their 40's or older to meet the needs of changing skin. However, any age group can benefit from the collection since the formulas are skin beneficial and gentle enough for daily use. You really need to read this entire review through and then share the info with your besties because I know that there's a product for everyone here. Plus the price points and the product fill-weights are affordable and generous!

Stay Beautiful! XOXO

Opinion: Warm Love is the most fantastic facial exfoliator that I have ever come across! I'm not even trying to be dramatic and I'm a DOUBLE Leo so I'm quite dramatical... I did some research and found out that top skin experts agree that pumpkin enzymes are the best way to go for smoother, clearer skin. It's called warm love because after you work it into the skin, it leaves a warming sensation that helps to remove dead skin more easily. It smells absolutely divine! Literally like pumpkin pie. The results are SUPER SMOOTH skin. The only other facial masks that I feel are worth the splurge are Exfolikate and Peter Thomas Roth Pumpkin Enzyme -- reviews coming -- but those cost too much to be purchased and used with frequency so Warm Love is a perfect alternative. If you have sensitive skin like me, this will not burn or irritate but try not to keep it on past 5 minutes because it really peels off dead skin. Pure Love: I love that you can apply this lightweight and subtly fruity scented (fresh olive leaves) oil facial cleanser on dry skin, massage it in then rinse off. It's suggested that it be used with a muslin cloth like one of those balm cleanser types but your fingers will do. A few drops is all that's needed and Pure Love leaves the driest skin feeling hydrated and baby soft. I also love the pump mechanism because it's clean and the right amount gets released. Finally, Divine Love is a luscious skin hydrator made for in-shower use. The formula is non-greasy and clings to the skin, meaning you can feel it on your skin even after you shower. This locks in moisture so if you're in a rush and forget to apply body lotion you're covered. I highly recommend that you try the products out for yourself because you will enjoy how they make your skin feel and have confidence knowing they are natural and non-animal tested.
